

Researching Ancient Rome

Germany's research doesn't stop at historical writings. He also studies ancient maps, artifacts, sculptures and surviving epitaphs in other countries for a more comprehensive research, and because of that he was able to debunk established theories and make new discoveries. These findings are in the news constantly in Germany, which goes to show just how fascinated he is with Rome.

I too was able to find out at what age I should draw the Roman emperors thanks to him.
